LEIDOS EMPLOYER SPOTLIGHT CONNECTS MILITARY-AFFILIATED TALENT TO MISSION-DRIVEN CAREERS

Angie Fair, Senior Director of Strategic Partnerships, MSJ/VJ

The Strategic Partnerships team recently hosted an Employer Spotlight with Alex Verlhurst – Military Recruiter from Leidos, bringing together 54 military-affiliated job seekers for a direct conversation with the Leidos recruiting team about career opportunities across its diverse portfolio.

Leidos is a global technology and innovation company supporting customers across defense, intelligence, health, homeland security, and digital modernization. With approximately 47,000 employees worldwide, the company offers career pathways spanning engineering, cybersecurity, intelligence, software and IT, logistics, health services, business operations, and other mission-critical disciplines.

For military-affiliated professionals, Leidos highlighted the breadth of opportunities available to candidates with both technical and non-technical backgrounds.

Current openings include roles such as intelligence analysts, software and systems engineers, cybersecurity professionals, cloud engineers, data scientists, logistics and training specialists, and health-related positions.

Opportunities range from entry-level and professional positions to highly specialized roles requiring security clearances and technical expertise.

With 54 attendees, the event created another meaningful connection point between an established employer partner and the military-affiliated talent VetJobs serves. Candidates were provided a direct pathway to explore and express interest in current Leidos opportunities.
