Members of the VetJobs Pittsburgh Project teamed up with Westinghouse Electric Company on June 3, 2026, to co-host a successful career networking event at Westinghouse's headquarters in Cranberry Township. Led on-site by Recruiter Connect Specialist Nicole Yakovich, who bridges the gap between candidates and corporate hiring managers, and Career Specialist Jennifer Javorski, who provides personalized resume translation and interview prep, the annual event brought together 23 military-affiliated job seekers, including veterans and transitioning service members, for direct face-to-face interaction with hiring teams across the organization.

Designed to forge strong connections between top military talent and a veteran-friendly regional employer, the gathering allowed candidates to share their professional backgrounds, highlight their military experience, and gain firsthand insight into Westinghouse's company culture and hiring expectations. Participants exchanged contact information, submitted resumes for immediate and future job openings, and engaged in meaningful conversations with key decision-makers.

Attendees expressed strong appreciation for direct access to leadership, noting the value of building professional relationships that could shape their future careers. The impact of the collaboration was felt immediately, producing one direct hire for Westinghouse.
