

A Global Leader in the Events Industry.

Freeman is a global leader in the events industry, helping organizations create impactful experiences through trade shows, conventions, conferences, exhibits, and live events. With nearly a century of experience, Freeman brings together event strategy, creative design, audiovisual production, logistics, and on-site operations to help leading brands and organizations connect with their audiences.

Behind every successful event is a team coordinating complex operations, managing logistics, solving problems, and executing under pressure. These responsibilities align with many of the strengths veterans bring to the civilian workforce, including leadership, teamwork, adaptability, attention to detail, and mission-focused execution.

Explore Freeman's Veteran Fellowship Program.

Freeman's Veteran Fellowship Program offers veterans an opportunity to apply their military experience in a civilian professional setting while exploring a potential long-term career with a company at the center of the global events industry. The fellowship is designed with a pathway to leadership in mind, with Freeman aiming to transition fellows into supervisory roles upon program completion. Conversion opportunities will depend on organizational needs and available positions at the time the fellowship concludes. While a supervisory role is the program's goal, placement is not guaranteed.

Program Details at a Glance.

Pay: $30 per hour | Fellowship dates: February 2–May 15

- Location requirements: Participants must be located in the same city or state as their assigned work location.
- Potential career pathway: Freeman's goal is to transition fellows into supervisory roles, depending on organizational needs and available positions at the end of the fellowship.
