Jen Bowen Flynn Joins Generations Incorporated as Deputy Director

BOSTON, MA - Generations Incorporated is pleased to announce the hiring of its new Deputy Director, Jen Bowen Flynn. As Deputy Director, Jen will play a key role in the execution of our new three-year strategic plan, Read to Grow, by focusing on program operation and growth.

Jen comes to Generations Incorporated with a wealth of experience and well-rounded background as a senior nonprofit and civic engagement leader. From high-level strategy development to hands-on volunteer recruitment and engagement, to program design and impact measurement, Jen's skillset are a perfect match for the new Deputy Director position.

With previous leadership roles at City Year and the Clinton Foundation, Jen most recently served as the Associate Director of Social Venture Partners (SVP) where she led program operations, managing all organizational grant making, member engagement, grantee and portfolio management, pro bono volunteering, communications, and events. She also consulted with Social Venture Partners International's senior leadership team on its strategic vision and its role within the venture philanthropy sector.

As a part of the senior management team at Generations Incorporated, Jen will help shape future organization-wide policies that will contribute to the organization's overall success. In addition to her responsibilities overseeing our programs and volunteer recruitment, Jen will act as a liaison to our key program and community partners relative to funding, contracts, and delivery of services.

"We are extremely excited to have Jen joining Generations Incorporated as our new Deputy Director. Jen brings the perfect mix of management, systems thinking, and strategic vision to help move our program and organization forward," stated Executive Director Wes Enicks.
