

Michele Rebetti, M.A., President, Crestcom KEY Alliance

Michele has a Masters degree from Hofstra University in Industrial Organizational Psychology. She has worked in the training and development field for almost 20 years.

She has experience in creating and facilitating dynamic management and employee development training programs, as well as experience in Organization Development in many diverse industries throughout NY.

Michele owns her own company specializing in Management and Leadership training for many Long Island businesses. She helps companies improve their productivity and profitability by helping managers to develop the skills that sharpen their focus on the bottom-line and enhance their organization's ability to excel in their market. Michele's workshops focus on the often-overlooked people skills that can positively impact morale, productivity, performance and profits.

Michele is also an Adjunct Professor at Molloy College and an Assistant Professor at Farmingdale State College in the Psychology Department. She is a professional speaker, Past President of ATD (Association for Talent Development) and a volunteer in her community.
