

RESEARCH STUDY:

Emotions of Typically Developing (TD) Siblings with a Brother or Sister with Intellectual Disabilities (ID)

ABOUT THE STUDY

We know little about the emotions of TD siblings with a brother or sister with ID. This research study seeks to learn:

- about the emotions and experiences that TD siblings have;
- how siblings understand their feelings and talk about their emotions to other family members;
- what siblings think about the feelings of other people within their household; and
- how parents understand their TD child's feelings.

WHO IS ELIGIBLE?

Typically developing siblings with a brother/sister with ID between the ages of 9 and 12 years old and one parent. Participating parents are eligible to receive up to $20 in Amazon e-gift cards. Participating siblings are eligible to receive up to $30 in Amazon e-gift cards.

WHAT WILL PARENTS AND CHILDREN DO?

Parents will participate in two Zoom meetings to fill out a questionnaire and participate in one activity. Children will participate in three Zoom meetings to fill out a questionnaire, participate in one activity, and one individual interview.

ABOUT THE RESEARCHER

My name is Mike McCarthy, and I am an older brother to a sister with ID. This research study is for my PhD dissertation at the Warner School of Education and Human Development at the University of Rochester.
