

Need two screens on your Chromebook?

Bracket
key alt key

Meeting happening over here

The image shows a Zoom video call window. At the top, there's a dark bar with keyboard shortcuts: 'ctrl', 'alt', 'shift', and 's'. Below this is a video feed of a woman with glasses and curly hair, identified as 'Melissa K'. At the bottom of the window is a control bar with icons for 'Unmute', 'Stop Video', and a red 'End' button.

Work happening here

The image shows a Google Docs document titled 'Rain - Ughhhh!'. The browser's address bar shows the document URL. The document's menu bar includes 'File', 'Edit', 'View', 'Insert', 'Format', 'Tools', 'Add-ons', and 'Help'. The toolbar shows various editing tools like undo, redo, bold, italic, and font color. The document content is mostly blank, with a ruler at the top indicating line numbers 1 through 7.

Splitting My Screen on Zoom

1:22 - I find it easier to manually re-adjust the second screen by clicking on the minimize/maximize icon and resize as needed.