

In this video we will learn why Warhol was one of the great artistic visionaries of the 20th century. After World War II many new products became commercialized through art. Andy Warhol captured one of the new foods, Campbell soup, in his well-known pop style painting. He saw sublime beauty in the ubiquitous things that many of us take for granted, from what we eat and drink to the icons we admire. For example, he even celebrated the assembly line, in what he created and how he made it. Join us as Sue Goldberg presents this video about Andy Warhol.
