Happy Fall to our fans and community.

Be on the lookout for further information regarding our annual Waves Brew Tour fundraiser to be held in December.

The Ocean State Waves would like to thank all of our fans and supporters who saw us through a very successful 2024 summer collegiate baseball season. This season's attendance grew each week with fans, of all ages, enjoying summer evenings at the ballpark.

In 2024 the Waves celebrated the achievements of 8, current and former, players drafted in the 2024 MLB draft, along with two former Waves, Nick Raposo and Ben Casparious, making their MLB debuts. With over 50 alumni drafted in the past 11 years, the team is excited for 2025,

The Waves are excited for 2025, with a nearly completed 2025 roster. Fans are encouraged to stay tuned for updates on the Waves Brew Tour fundraiser in December, and support the team by becoming host families, sponsors, or making donations. The word is out in the college baseball community that the Ocean State Waves and Southern Rhode Island is the place to come play your summer baseball. The fact that we already have signed many players for next season is a testament to the fans, host families and communities of South Kingstown

Many changes are in the future of the Waves:

- *The community of South Kingstown is starting the planned upgrades to Old Mountain Field.

- *The NECBL has been working with ESPN to put many of the league's games on ESPN+. Nearly 100 league games were broadcast in 2024 and your Ocean State Waves played in several. The league is working to expand coverage to more venues throughout the league and to bring ESPN broadcast to Old Mountain Field.

- *Our home game streaming service has grown and now our games are being viewed by fans nationwide.
