Where should I go to get a COVID-19 Test?

Go to a community-based testing site in _Illinois_ and _Wisconsin_ if you are:

- not experiencing symptoms
- not seeking treatment by a clinician
- simply seeking a COVID-19 test

Patients with symptoms who are seen in their doctor's office, at an urgent care site, or by video visit may continue to be tested in the office or at an urgent or immediate care center.
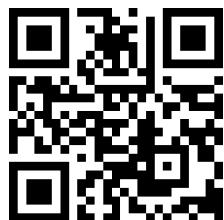

Why should I go to a community-based testing site?
The high demand for COVID-19 testing at our emergency and immediate care centers has resulted in reduced access and increased wait times for those in need of care.

By seeking a test at a community-based site, you allow your neighbors to receive the emergency and urgent care they need more quickly.
