1871	1872	1873	1874	1875
	On April 14, 1872, a law called the Dominion Lands Act was passed. It made rules about how to measure and sell land in Western Canada. It gave 160 acres of free land to European newcomers who wanted to start a farm on the Prairies.

Treaty 4 was made at Fort Qu'Appelle in what is now Saskatchewan and later at Fort Ellice in Manitoba.

Treaty 3 was made at the Northwest Angle on Lake of the Woods. The Treaty is known for being carefully negotiated by the Anishinaabe leaders.

Treaty 5 was made at Norway House and later at other northern communities in Manitoba.

Treaty 1 was made at Lower Fort Garry. It was an agreement between the Anishinaabe and Cree peoples and the Crown.

Treaty 2 was made at a fur trade fort called Manitoba House located on Lake Manitoba. It involved the Anishinaabe peoples and the Crown.
