CURRENT SITUATION

The fire remained active overnight, burning in more dense and dry receptive fuels on the CZU Lightning Complex. A slight warming and drying is expected today, followed by a slight cooling tomorrow. Several evacuation orders were lifted yesterday. Crews will be working with residents to repopulate the area ensuring safety and security while re-entering their communities. An infrastructure group continues working to open roads, mitigate hazard trees and restore utilities. Damage inspection continues where fire activity has diminished and it is safe to do so. The number of destroyed structures reflected may change as teams continue to make progress, damage inspection is now 70% complete. Repopulation of residents affected by evacuations will continue as conditions permit. As residents begin to return home, remember to drive carefully as fire crews and emergency personnel are still working in the area.

There are approximately 52,000 residents evacuated.
