You were kind enough to put an item in your newsletter a few months ago about my retirement from ABC News as VP of NewsOne.

I wanted to offer you an update on me to consider for this week's newsletter.

I've joined the College of Communication and Media at my alma mater, Montclair State University, in the role of Special Assistant to the Dean.

In this new role, I will be working with students on journalism and media projects, helping to develop and enhance co-curricular programming for the College, teaching classes, and working on implementing new initiatives that support the College's strategic goals.

My first big project is working as the Faculty Advisor to The Montclarion, the student newspaper of Montclair State.

Thanks for your continuing great work on your newsletter. It is mandatory Sunday night reading for me!

Take care.
