Dear CBS News and Stations colleagues,

Greetings from Denver, where I am visiting our team at CBS 4 today. A few minutes ago, I was pleased to share with our colleagues at KCNC that we have named Tim Wieland, the station's longtime News Director, as General Manager of our local businesses in Denver.

As the organizational structure at CBS News and Stations continues to take shape, we are thrilled to have leaders and innovators like Tim on our team. In recent years, Tim and his Denver colleagues have done a tremendous job of transforming their operation into a multi-skilled, multi-platform newsroom: an organization where everyone in News is cross-trained and contributes content to our broadcast, streaming and digital platforms.

We look forward to having Tim continue to foster creativity, growth and a positive workplace culture as he takes on this new role.

Please join Neeraj and me in congratulating Tim and wishing him continued success.

Wendy

TIM WIELAND NAMED VICE PRESIDENT AND GENERAL MANAGER OF CBS NEWS AND STATIONS' LOCAL BUSINESSES IN DENVER

Tim Wieland, an award-winning journalist and 27-year veteran at KCNC-TV (CBS 4) in Denver, has been named Vice President and General Manager of CBS News and Television Stations' local businesses in Denver, including CBS 4, CBSN Denver and CBSDenver.com. The announcement was made today by Wendy McMahon, President and Co-Head of CBS News and Stations.

Wieland is assuming his new role effective immediately after having served as News Director at KCNC since 2004. He is succeeding Walt DeHaven, who retired last month following nearly 20 years as General Manager at CBS 4 and 40 years in the local television industry.

"I can't think of a better example of someone receiving a well-deserved promotion than Tim Wieland," McMahon said. "Tim understands the need to modernize and transform our brands and products for the future, and I am confident he will take our great team in Denver to new heights, focused on solid journalism, an unparalleled workplace culture and a community service commitment that is second to none."

"I feel fortunate to have been able to spend almost my entire career at CBS 4, working alongside such an exceptional group of colleagues in our news department," Wieland said. "Now, I am excited to take on this broader role and provide leadership and support to our entire CBS Denver family. As part of the newly united CBS News and Stations organization, we have a tremendous opportunity to deliver wins on a daily basis for the mutual benefit of our company, the diverse communities we serve, and our valued business partners."

Over the course of Wieland's nearly three decades at CBS 4, the station's news department has received numerous industry honors, including the George Foster Peabody Award; three national Edward R. Murrow Awards; several regional Murrow Awards, including the award for Overall Excellence; and dozens of Emmy Awards.

Prior to serving as News Director, Wieland was the Assistant News Director at CBS 4 from 2001-2004. His first experience at KCNC was from 1992-1999, when he started as a senior news writer and newscast producer and was elevated to executive producer in 1998.

In 1999, Wieland briefly left Denver and spent two years in Atlanta, where he worked for CNN as a newscast producer and field producer.

After graduating from the University of Colorado with a bachelor's degree in broadcast journalism, Wieland gained his first professional experience as a reporter, anchor, producer, photographer and video editor at KREX-TV in Grand Junction, Colo.

Wieland is also a graduate of the Newsroom Management program at the Poynter Institute.
