Subject: Welcome Ana Hernandez!

I'm pleased to announce Ana Hernández is joining our team as Duopoly News Director!

Ana is renowned in the NBCU/Telemundo universe as the creative, dynamic News Director of the Telemundo station in Philadelphia (T62/WWSI) where she's grown the duopoly with NBC's WCAU, developing new ways for the teams to work together in our multiplatform world – while leading daily and breaking coverage.

Many of you with WNJU know Ana from way back in 2017 when she arrived in Philadelphia as Assistant News Director and was quickly promoted to News Director – and became a key leader linking the Philly and New York teams. From COVID to Hurricane Maria recovery to the manhunt for Luigi Mangione, Ana was integral to uniting the coverage of WWSI and WNJU, sharing resources and information to make both stations shine. At the same time, she was deeply involved in WCAU operations, coordinating coverage with the NBC reporters, rolling out new technology (including some that's coming here!), and overseeing the parts of the duopoly like the weather team. Before arriving in Philadelphia, she was a producer and EP with Telemundo Puerto Rico for 15 years.

In any station (or language!) everyone will tell you the same thing about Ana... she's a seasoned, steady, smart, kind, creative (and super fun!) leader who will instantly make us better. As Duopoly News Director, she'll lead WNBC & WNJU with me. While it's critical to our evolution into ONE TEAM that we don't have separate leaders for each station, we're still working through how to divide all the responsibilities.

Please join me in welcoming and congratulating Ana! Her first day is Monday, April 20th.

Dave
