It's not often a candidate the caliber of Jim Wilson comes along. Among other accolades, he's won a Peabody Award, a National Murrow Award (5 times!), and is already enshrined in the National Academy of Television Arts & Sciences Wisconsin Silver Circle. Jim started as a photojournalist at Fox 6 here in Milwaukee more than 30 years ago. He eventually became Chief Photojournalist, then Assistant News Director, and eventually Vice President/ News Director. But, as Jim would tell you, despite his ascension up the ranks, he remained a photojournalist at heart. In addition to his other awards, Jim is a former National Press Photographers Association (NPPA) Region 5 Photographer of the Year and twice during his tenure Fox 6 was named the NPPA Station of the Year.

I'm very excited to announce Jim is bringing his experience, his skills as a visual storyteller, and his reputation as a coach and mentor to TMJ4! Jim is joining the team as our next Chief Photographer. Jim is the kind of journalist who will instantly make us better on day one.

Jim's first day with us will be July 25th. Until then, I know Jim would appreciate hearing from his new colleagues. He can be reached at jtiberiuswilson@yahoo.com

Please join me in giving Jim a warm TMJ4 welcome!
