Subject: Announcement

Hi everyone –

Following Monday's announcement about our newly appointed vice presidents of content, please join me in welcoming two more to the team: Javier Morgado, a seasoned local and national news veteran, and Michael Valentine, the current vice president of news at WUSA9.

Javier will serve as vice president of content, working with WUSA (Washington, D.C.), WVEC (Norfolk), WGRZ (Buffalo), WPMT (Harrisburg), WNEP (Scranton/Wilkes-Barre), WTIC (Hartford), and WLBZ/WCSH (Portland/Bangor).

"Javi" is an experienced newsroom veteran and four-time Emmy award-winning executive producer who brings more than two decades of experience in network, cable, and local TV news. For the last 12 years, he's been at CNN in New York, leading several shows, including the morning show, New Day, and most recently, At This Hour. He has also held management positions at NBC News, serving as supervising producer of the TODAY show and senior editor of the NBC News Network Desk.

Javi began his journalism career in local news in his hometown of Miami, working at the ABC affiliate, WPLG, and the NBC station, WTVJ. He was recently inducted into the national Silver Circle honor society by the National Academy of Television Arts & Sciences for devoting more than 25 years of distinguished service to the TV news industry. He was also honored with a proclamation by the New York City Council for his "outstanding contributions to journalism, the arts, and the LGBTQ+ community."

Michael will move into the role of vice president of content and work with WXIA (Atlanta), WMAZ (Macon), WZDX (Huntsville), WTSP (Tampa), First Coast News (Jacksonville), WCNC (Charlotte), WFMY (Greensboro), WLTX (Columbia).

Part of team TEGNA for more than 12 years, Michael has been overseeing station operations for WUSA9, our CBS affiliate in Washington, DC. During his time at WUSA9, the station has won several regional Edward R. Murrow awards, including recognition in 2025 for digital-first journalism. He previously acted as vice president of news for the Belo media companies at WFAA-TV. During his time at WFAA, the station was recognized for its investigative reporting with two George Foster Peabody Awards, two National Edward R. Murrow Awards and three duPont-Columbia Silver Baton Awards.

I'm excited to keep building this team of content leaders to work with our newsrooms and help us continue making an impact on our communities.

Please join me in welcoming Javi and Michael to the team!

Thanks,
Adrienne
