YOU ARE NEEDED!!

Ways YOU Can Help During the Covid-19 Crisis

- Make fabric masks – The Governor has recommended wearing face masks and gloves for essential errands, but it's important that we don't buy the medical grade masks needed by health professionals. Instructions for sewn and no sew options are available on the CDC's website.
- Give blood – The Rhode Island Blood Center needs donation as blood drives across the state have been canceled. Schedule a time to give blood here.
- Take the Census – The Census takes less than 10 minutes to fill out and you can complete it online. Getting a full count will help ensure our hospitals and state programs get their fair share of federal resources moving forward.
- Deliver Meals on Wheels – Meals on Wheels has seen a surge in demand during this crisis and needs for volunteers to deliver hot meals to homebound seniors. Sign up
- Donate supplies to hospitals – Rhode Island has set up an online form for individuals to donate Personal Protective Equipment (PPE) to health care workers.
- Volunteer health care expertise – If you're a medical or behavioral health professional and don't currently work full time, please consider volunteering through RI Responds to provide relief for front line workers and expand our treatment capacity.
- Join Project Hello to help elders feel less isolated. People can check in on one another through a daily phone or Zoom call.
- Join Covid Connectors Not every person in need has a device with which to video chat. COVID Connectors allows anyone to donate iPads, iPhones and laptops to Rhode Island hospitals. If you have a device you're willing to donate, please go to covidconnectors.org today.
- Volunteer for the KWAOR REALTOR Relief Task Force Contact linda@kwaor.realtor if you'd like to get involved. Know someone in Kent or Washington Counties who could use some assistance? Call (401) 862-1816
The KWAOR REALTOR Relief Task Force has volunteers standing by.
