

Michael Noriega

Mike Noriega is the Chief of Outreach for the American Journey Experience, a history museum and research center located in Irving, Texas, created by conservative media personality Glenn Beck. He previously served as a policy analyst in the Texas House of Representatives and as an ambassador for Rick Green's Patriot Academy.

Noriega's role involves leading educational initiatives and civic engagement efforts, including managing the museum's traveling exhibits like History Rocks!, which was recently showcased in South Carolina during a tour by US Education Secretary Linda McMahon. He also coordinates volunteer programs, such as the Docent-In-Training Program, to help visitors engage with the museum's extensive collection of historical artifacts.
