Alpenglo Media is a full service video production house located in Avon, CO. Longtime friends Derek George and Tyler Wells recognized a need in the Vail Valley for a production company that could take an idea from concept to completion, and founded Alpenglo Media in 2015. Both George and Wells have backgrounds in filmmaking—George with a BFA in Filmmaking from CU Boulder, and Wells with a bachelor’s degree from The Art Institute of Colorado where he studied video-compositing and non-linear editing.

Technology has come a long way since the days of developing long rolls of film and then literally cutting them up with a razor blade and taping them back together. These days, Alpenglo Media uses the latest ultra high definition cameras, aerial drones, and stabilization technology to create dramatic footage, while maximizing portability for remote shoots. From the client’s perspective, this means they can get shots that were once thought of as only obtainable for big budget Hollywood films, while keeping production costs low and turn-around times short.

When asked what separates Alpenglo Media from other real estate videographers, George said, “At our core we are storytellers. What that means for brokers, is we can help you craft a sales tool that explains why your listing is the perfect fit for a client. Getting beautiful imagery is only the first part; it’s being able to take that imagery and cohesively put it together with interviews, music and voice-over to show as well as explain the features of a property that makes what we do stand out. With the short, but intense selling seasons we experience in the Vail Valley, having several property videos to show a client saves everyone time and gives you a step-up on the competition.”

Whether you are looking for aerial drone footage to show the proximity of a ski-in ski-out, need a walk-through of your luxury listing, or want a broker profile to enhance your online presence, Alpenglo Media has you covered. With competitive pricing and quick turn-around times, Alpenglo Media is your local video solution.
