MRJ MEN OF REFORM JUDAISM

Dear Ross,

Antisemitism and the Fight for Democracy

Please join us on January 31, 2024, at 8PM Eastern for a conversation with Amy Spitalnick, CEO of JCPA.

The JCPA, Jewish Council for Public Affairs was founded in 1944.

Antisemitism does not only threaten the Jewish community – it jeopardizes the safety of countless other communities and our fundamental democratic norms and values. Amy Spitalnick will discuss the different ways antisemitism manifests and how it is inextricably linked with the broader fight for our democracy.

Vision:
JCPA envisions an America that celebrates its full diversity, rejects hate, bigotry and injustice, and protects its democracy, and an American Jewish community fully engaged in pursuit of these ideals.

Mission:

The mission of the Jewish Council for Public Affairs (JCPA) is to strengthen and leverage the Jewish community relations network across the nation to champion a just, democratic and pluralistic society and advance the right of full inclusion of all members of our society, including Jews, free of discrimination hate and prejudice.

Inspired by Jewish values of human dignity and equal justice under the law and an abiding commitment to vibrant and secure Jewish communities here, Israel and throughout the world, JCPA convenes and catalyzes its network to work with public officials and build deep relations and engage in advocacy coalitions based on shared goals with other civic, racial, ethnic and faith-based leaders and communities.

JCPA has been the organized national Jewish community's convener, intergroup connector, and policy advocate since 1944. Our motto is educate, advocate, and mobilize.

Amy Spitalnick is the CEO of the Jewish Council for Public Affairs, the national convener of Jewish coalitions working across communities to build a just and inclusive American democracy.

She previously served as Executive Director of Integrity First for America, which won its groundbreaking lawsuit against the neo-Nazis, white supremacists, and hate groups responsible for the Charlottesville violence. Under Amy's leadership, IFA became a powerful national voice in the fight against white supremacy, antisemitism, and extremism – and its Charlottesville case has emerged as a model for accountability.

Amy also serves as a Senior Advisor on Extremism to Human Rights First, on the Advisory Board of the Polarization and Extremism Research and Innovation Lab (PERIL) at American University, and on Bedrock's National Leadership Council. She has extensive experience in government, politics, and advocacy, including as Communications Director and Senior Policy Advisor to the New York Attorney General and spokesperson and advisor to the New York City

Mayor. She has also worked for a number of federal, state, and local officials, campaigns, and advocacy organizations, including as J Street's first press secretary.

Amy frequently appears in national media and has been awarded various fellowships and honors, including being named a Women in Power Fellow at the 92nd Street Y, a Truman National Security Project Fellow, a City & State 40 Under 40 Rising Star, and a NY Jewish Week 36 Under 36 Changemaker. She graduated from Tufts University.
