Aimee Davidson
YWCA Rhode Island
Workforce Development Specialist
She/her

Aimee has been with YWCA Rhode Island since 2014. She currently leads the agency’s Racial Justice & Equity workshop and professional development programs. An experienced facilitator, technical assistant, and consultant; Aimee works with non-profit agencies throughout Rhode Island, engaging directly with the executive leadership of these agencies in applying the content of YWCA Rhode Island Racial Justice & Equity programs to their internal policies and procedures in order to support them in undoing oppressive workplace cultures in pursuit of reframing their agencies toward equity and inclusion.

She is trained in the facilitation of complex topics of race, racism, and systemic oppression in the US; having completed multiple trainings in racial justice and its facilitation from YWCA Madison, The Racial Equity Institute, and The Social Justice Training Institute. She lives in Providence, RI.

“If you have come here to help me, you are wasting your time. But if you have come because your liberation is bound up with mine, then let us work together.”

-Lilla Watson