

Baltimore County Farm Bureau Agriculture Innovator Award

This award may be presented once per year during the annual banquet as qualified recipients are identified.

The individual considered for the Agriculture Innovator shall be a member in good standing of BCFB and widely considered to be one who has made significant contributions to the agriculture community through innovative ideas, methods, or practices.

Award recipients will have achieved the following:

- Owned or taken significant leadership role in a business that is recognized as a successful leader within the agriculture community.
- Has implemented practices or procedures that have been recognized as innovative and beneficial to the agriculture community and/or public perception of agriculture.
- Has given substantial help and time to a charitable organization(s) within or outside of the agriculture community.

Only one recipient may be awarded each year. The Baltimore County Farm Bureau Agriculture Innovator Award applications shall be judged by a panel to consist of two previous BCFB presidents and the MFB field staff representative for Baltimore County.
