

Experience a refreshing day long retreat on the spectacular grounds of the Eastern Point Retreat Center. There will be creative, interactive practices to deepen our connection to the Earth and each other. Together we will enter shared ritual and personal reflections, acknowledge difficult feelings, and envision hopeful paths forward.

Facilitators Anne Goodwin and Joseph Rotella are experienced leaders of the Work That Reconnects, a body of group practices based on ecopsychology, engaged Buddhism, ancient wisdom traditions, and anti-oppressive therapy. The work is designed to heal ecological and social disconnections, and move humanity toward a life-sustaining culture.
