Unraveling a Mystery of the Dead

A recent survey as established that there are 48 cemeteries and family burial plots in Platte Township. It is estimated that Clay County has over 300 family burial plots (distinguished from public cemeteries). When a forgotten family plot is found, there is usually a mystery of the dead to be unraveled. Such was the case of the Young & Gunn family burial plot off the west side of Mt. Olivet Road north of 144th Street. The plot is now sectioned off in a new housing development. The history of the people buried there is fascinating.

An intact memorial stone remains for Abigail Gunn, born 1799. Her maiden name was Strode, a family that is well documented in pioneering history. Abigail's immigrant ancestors were English Quakers who traveled by ship from Holland to Philadelphia. Tragically, the parents died at sea. Their children were cared for by other passengers, then were "bound out" by the Philadelphia Orphan Court until they reached legal age. We fast forward now to the Strode family adventures in Kentucky. The Strodes crossed the Cumberland Gap with Daniel Boone and established several "stations" (fortressed villages) in Kentucky. Abigail's grandfather, Capt. John Strode, who served in the Revolution, founded Strode's Station at Winchester in Clark County. The Duncan and Rice families, early settlers near Smithville, also lived at that station. Capt. James Duncan married Abigail's aunt Elizabeth Strode in 1777. The families migrated to western Clay County around the same time. Capt. Duncan built the Baptist Church and schoolhouse that served the area.

Abigail Strode married Thomas Young in 1817. They arrived in the Smithville area in 1836 after acquiring 170 acres in Township 53, Range 33, in Sections 30, 31, and 36 by using his land bounty for service in the War of 1812. Unfortunately, Thomas died the next year, leaving Abigail to run the farm and raise 10 children on her own (two daughters had already married in to Jesse and Corum families). Woodford Jesse and John Wilkerson administered probate of Thomas' estate. The court granted Abigail a lifetime dower interest in 144 acres of the land, which was divided among the 12 children. Her son Joseph Robert Young was a founder of Valley Falls, Kansas where he became a prominent businessman, councilman and city marshal. Calvin Smith would also relocate at Valley Falls when things heated up in Smithville during the Civil War. Another son, Stephen Young, served as captain in the Home Guard for Platte County during the Civil War. A daughter, Elizabeth Jane, married Robert Breckenridge and lived in Smithville until she died in 1911.

So back to Abigail. A neighbor, Thomas Jefferson Gunn, lost his wife in 1839, perhaps as a result of childbirth, leaving him with two young children to raise. In 1840 T. J. and Abigail formed a new marital partnership. T. J. chose to fight for the Confederacy, enlisting in January 1862 for one year at Springfield, Missouri. The 1880 federal census shows Thomas and Abigail farming on their own with his son James and his family farming next door. While the census reported that Thomas could not read or write, he became a Clay County Judge (commissioner) in 1872. They farmed the land where the burial plot is located. Abigail died in 1887 and was buried in the Young plot. Most headstones are pieces of natural stone without engraving now visible. It is believed that Abigail's first husband, Thomas Young, is buried in the plot. Another monument was raised :in Memory of William Elizabeth and Malinda Gunn." Thomas Gunn remarried in 1894 and moved to Ray County, where he remained for the rest of his life.

Results of the local election: Dr. E. C. Hill, school board president; John Waters, vice president; John Morton, treasurer; and A. C. Layton, secretary. Charles Shinn was elected mayor and A.M. Brooks, T. E. Doberly, and George Breckenridge as aldermen.

John R. Woods has passed away. He was born here in 1844, a son of Kemp Woods. He was president of Famers Bank of Smithville and the Bank of Nashua. He was a major supporter of the election to issue bonds to build paved roads in Clay County and his efforts led to the first rural delivery routes out of town. He owned Elmwood Stock Farm for over 20 years, breeding shorthorn cattle.

The state legislature has passed a bill that will allow Clay County to become a modified accredited county to combat the spread of tuberculosis in livestock. Last year the county disposed of all tubercular cattle: 5 cows per 1,000, with compensation to farmers. Clay County could be the first TB free county in Missouri.
