

All Things are Connected

The chart below demonstrates how a rodenticide works its way up the food chain.

It is important to understand how poisons and rodenticides affect the food chain and our local wildlife. National Park Service researchers have found a direct link between exposure to anticoagulant rodenticides, commonly known as “rat poisons,” and the deaths of wildlife in and around the Santa Monica Mountains.

