

Pan Mass Challenge

With your support, this past August, I was blessed to complete my second 200-mile ride with the Pan Mass Challenge, and to raise nearly $8,000. I was joined by more than 6,200 other cyclists, and 4,500+ volunteers in raising more than $47 million in one weekend for Dana Farber Cancer Institute. During the past 37 years, PMC cyclists have ridden to raise and contribute $547 million to cancer research.

I always thought that my first ride, in 2015, would be “one-and-done” for me. However, as I prepare for my third ride, I realize how special and important the PMC is not only to my fellow riders and me but also to those who have fought and continue to fight cancer.

Each year I have been deeply humbled by the generous support of family and friends, for which I will always be grateful.
