

Susan Dealis Gobbo – Bio

Susan Dealis Gobbo's journey from Brazil to the U.S.A. marked a transformative entry into a new chapter of her life. She navigated and overcame multiple challenges, learned from her setbacks, rediscovered her identity, and rebuilt herself. Transitioning from a successful healthcare professional to an impactful social entrepreneur in a new land, Susan found her calling!

Through more than 10+ years of civic work, she has supported many international women to feel heard, recover their identities, find their path, build meaningful relationships, and integrate into their new community while championing diversity, equity, and inclusiveness. Her numerous accolades for her achievements fuel her ongoing commitment to advocating for the international community. By sharing her story with vulnerability, Susan intends to resonate with and uplift other international women who may feel “alone” in a new country."

Susan founded the International Spouses/Expat Women Group, and is a co-founder of both International Mentoring St. Louis and the Immigrant Professional Women Network in STL. She has also contributed to several books on immigration and leadership.
