ELKS NATIONAL HOOP SHOOT

FREE THROW PROGRAM

DEVELOPING GRITTY KIDS.

There are few national contests that encourage kids to set a goal that pushes them to their limits by practicing, being persistent, and, most important, getting gritty during their formative years.

There's a program that engrains those attributes in our youth, and it's the Elks National Hoop Shoot free-throw contest. Contests start at the Lodge level.

COMPETE.

- ▶ The Elks Hoop Shoot provides a character-building, competitive experience for all contestants.
- ▶ Contestants learn about the importance of respect and good sportsmanship.
- ▶ They learn to be humble after a successful win and are prepared to accept defeat gracefully.
- ▶ Through each level of competition, the contestants support one another.

Although shooting baskets is a big part of the Hoop Shoot, it's not the only thing.

CONNECT.

- ▶ With hours of practice at every level of competition, parents connect with their child throughout the Hoop Shoot experience.
- ▶ Family members travel with their contestant to every competition and share the experience together.
- ▶ Contestants connect with one another throughout their journey, developing positive relationships with peers.
- ▶ Contestants and families regard spending time together as one of the top benefits of participating in the Hoop Shoot.

SUCCEED.

- ▶ By setting goals and working hard to achieve them, contestants develop grit that aids in succeeding in school and life.

DEVELOPING GRITTY KIDS

- ▶ For more than 45 years, the Hoop Shoot has been developing gritty kids.
- ▶ Research suggests grit is a more accurate predictor of success than social intelligence, good looks, physical health or IQ.
- ▶ Participation in the Hoop Shoot encourages kids to set goals and work hard—keys to developing grit.
- ▶ These lessons help kids bounce back and keep trying even when they don't succeed the first time, whether they're on the court or in the classroom.
