

Ethical Choices in Unethical Times from Teri Jelinek and Craig Cogger

In these unethical times where everything is for sale, even an Inauguration Day edition of the Bible for $69.95, we can express our concerns through ethical consumerism. The following companies that contributed $1 million to the Trump campaign are currently facing anti-trust lawsuits with the federal department: META, Apple, Amazon, and Google. Pharmaceutical giants Bayer and Johnson & Johnson also contributed $1 million each, and energy companies like Exxon Mobil have already seen the benefits of their million dollar contributions in the Trump reversal of the Environmental Act and the changes in the National Health Service.

The following companies have changed or ended their D.E.I. programs:

Amazon	Kohl's	Target
Citigroup	Lowe's	Tesla
CNN	Lyft	Tractor Supply
Door Dash	McDonald's	Victoria's Secret
Deloitte	META	Walmart
Ford Motor	Microsoft	Warner Brothers-Discovery
Goldman Sachs	Molson-Coors
Google	Nissan	Wayfair
Harley Davidson	Polaris Motorcycles	Zoom
Jack Daniels	Salesforce
John Deere	Snapchat

We can boycott these companies and let them know that we will continue to boycott their products until they change their HR policies.

We can also buy Fair Trade products, shop at the Tacoma Co-Op at 4502 North Pearl Street, shop locally, patronize minority owned businesses and join a Tacoma Buy Nothing group.
