

PENN CENTRAL CONFERENCE

UNITED CHURCH OF CHRIST

...equipping and empowering congregations and clergy for the declaration and demonstration of the courageous love of Christ!

A Message from PCC

August 28, 2019

Dear friends of Penn Central Conference, It is back to school season and my Facebook feed is filled with all the beautiful pictures of my friends' children as they begin new adventures in education and life. My favorite back to school post was from a retirement care community that used a whiteboard to name the resident, their age, their class year and their advice for kids on the first day of a new year. It was touching to see the first day excitement span generations!

It's a first day season in the Church, too, as many of you are looking forward to Rally Days and Spirit Sundays to kick-off the start of new Faith Formation and Sunday School seasons, as well as quite a few churches spreading back out into multiple worship services after combining for the summer.

I love learning and relish in any moment dedicated to shining a spotlight on its importance. How might God be speaking through this current focus on back to school, back to faith formation, back to education and calling you to learn something new in your faith life? It may not mean back to anything, it may simply be tuning in to a new calling.

A few weeks ago, I was preaching about learning faith from the Isaiah 1:10-20 and Hebrews 11:13-16 passages in the lectionary. In my sermon I asked the congregation what they might be seeing in the distance that God was calling them to greet even from afar.

And then I asked another question that has become a more personal, lengthy wrestling match kind of question: "what practices of your faith might God be testifying against and calling you out of?"

This is my learning right now: what new faith practices is God calling me to and conversely, what faith practices might God be calling me out of because I do them by rote even though they may not spiritually feed me any longer? What about you? What can you learn about yourself as our calendar calls everyone, across all generations to think about learning?

Shalom,

Nora

We just reached $6,720 of the $7,000 needed for the Craft Shop.

That means less than $300 left! Any funds raised in excess of the Craft Shop project will be used for renovations of Michaux Lodge.

No contribution is too small. Make checks payable to Penn Central Conference and send them to Penn Central Conference, 900 S. Arlington Ave. Rm. 227A, Harrisburg, PA 17109.

We expect renovations to be made this summer and early fall with a special dedication to occur at the Hartman Center Fall Festival, October 12, 2019.
