

Nathan is a registered nurse and the Founder and CEO of HealthBar, a business developing care delivery innovation and healthcare payment model disruption. He started his career as a bedside ER nurse eventually becoming the Director of Emergency Services for University of Michigan Health-West. During his 13 years in the health system, he gained valuable insights as a clinical provider and significant expertise in the corporate functions of the healthcare system. These formative experiences were the catalyst for HealthBar and his desire to fundamentally change how primary and preventative care are viewed in the US.
