Argentina

Traditionally, the number of weekday visitors to the VIC diminishes this time of the year, but the percentage of people who ask for maps and suggestions increases. Most out-of-state visitors come to New England to view the fall foliage, witness the cranberry harvest and take a side trip to see Plymouth. Some come by way of See Plymouth, while others come by sea Plymouth. Still others get their first view of Plymouth from a C-section at BIDH. Many who see Plymouth in all its glory, fall in love with the town and decide to move here. Real estate is real in Plymouth right now.

Plymouth Launch

Plymouth Launch closed out its first season on October 15. They provided water transportation for all boaters in Plymouth Harbor. Fran McMillen, the owner, looks forward to next season, maybe expanding to include harbor tours. Thanks Fran for offering these services.

Art in Bloom

This weekend, the Center for the Arts will hold their annual Art in Bloom. This popular exhibit pairs up some of the art in the 53rd Annual Juried Art Exhibit with floral designs accentuating the art. The show will be held from Noon until 4:00 pm, October 22-25.

Ghost Tours

October is prime time for tours of the supernatural and macabre. The Plymouth Night Tour offers participants the opportunity to participate in a paranormal investigation surrounding the history and haunts of America's Hometown (no tour October 25th). The Spirit of Plymouth Tours offers a Murder, Mystery and Mayhem tour (October 23, 24 and 30, 31). Dead of Night Ghost Tours' website shows no dates available at this time.

The VIC should offer its own ghost tours. We have heard on many occasions toilets flushing by themselves. We have seen the front door open by itself either as a cautious, gentle swing or as a hard, hurried push. We believe it might be the ghost of a child who was left behind. A youngster who does not wash his/her hands after using the facilities. A youngster who cautiously opens the door looking for his family, or brazenly shoves the door open while racing to find his family.

The VIC is haunted by the ghost of a child and the ghost of a child is haunted by the VIC's boo-tiful bad jokes.
