Planning Day

Here are some ideas for you to consider going forward in the class studies.

I mentioned before that I am not as versed in Old Testament as New, but I have three ideas if you would like to have some Old Testament studies

1. I will select stories, or special verses from all of the books from Genesis through Malachi that I and most of you might have some familiarity about.
2. We can do a study of the Pentateuch with the understanding that Leviticus is far from my favorite, but worthy of study in some areas
3. There are some Old Testament authors who have good study guides if you would like to have weekly reading and discussion. I can provide copies if we choose to study with more in-depth theologians

I would consider a New Testament study from the following ideas.

1. Gospels: Matthew, Mark, Luke and John.
2. Acts of the Apostles with some lead in scripture from Luke. Dr. Luke wrote both Luke and Acts so they could be tied in some way.

I very interested in involving Ron more as he is willing. If you have had some studies with him that you would like to continue, I'm sure we could Okay, that's it. I quit. This is where I open it to you for your ideas. Here is some think space...

We are not forever tied to the Numbers Scripture for closing. Your ideas or personal writing are welcome.

The Lord bless you and keep you;
the lord make his face to shine on you and be gracious to you and give you peace.

Numbers 6:24-26
