

2023 Alberta Wildfires: Support for Households

As part of our ongoing assistance to impacted communities, the Canadian Red Cross has launched the Support for Households program. This program offers personalized recovery support and financial incentives for a range of mitigative and maintenance activities to help households impacted by the 2023 Alberta Wildfires.

Personalized Recovery Support

Personalized recovery support is available to those with a primary residence that was destroyed or saw major damage as a result of the 2023 Alberta Wildfires. It is available to those who are homeowners, tenants, or live in a community-owned home.

The Canadian Red Cross teams work directly with impacted people to help them navigate their recovery journey and access available community resources and support.

Residential Mitigation Incentives

Support for residential mitigation and maintenance activities is available to Albertans with a primary residence that was not damaged, or that incurred minor damage, in a community that was under an evacuation order or alert during the 2023 Alberta Wildfires.

These activities reduce the risk of wildfire spread around your home and can range from small, short-term tasks you can complete independently to larger, long-term projects that require the support of a professional.

People who were impacted by the 2023 Alberta Wildfires and would like to learn more about this support, or to apply, are encouraged to visit www.redcross.ca/2023albertafires
