VICTORIA COUNTY, Texas - The Texas Ramp Project in the Crossroads is spreading accessibility for families in need.

On Saturday, Jan. 31, a duo from the group helped build a ramp for a family caring for a woman facing mobility difficulties due to health issues.

Cheryl Brown's mother is over 80 years old and had difficulties getting in and out of Brown's house due to the steep stairs up front. For months, Brown's mother was confined to the home, unable to leave freely.

With the new installation, Brown's mother can now use the ramp to enter easily, but she can also use it as a track for exercise with its gentle incline.

Brown says the experience with TRP was excellent, and that they did a professional job that will significantly help their family and her mother.

The Texas Ramp Project is in the Crossroads is seeking volunteers, and a team leader to set up a group in the South Victoria area. Mark Kortokrax builds frames in a location near his home in Shiner, before bringing them to the site to build the actual platforms and handrails.

Kortokrax says anyone interested in volunteering can reach out to him at 361-799-9098.
