The War for Hearts and Minds

Budd Mackenzie, recognized by His Holiness the Dalai Lama as an "Unsung Hero" has been providing humanitarian aid to Afghanistan for 18 years. He has traveled to Afghanistan 20 times and currently has 22 Afghan employees pleading to get out. His book, "Off the Couch and into the War for Hearts and Minds, was described by Khaled Hosseini, author of The Kite Runner, as "A chronicle of extraordinary humanitarian efforts in Afghanistan by an ordinary person.... A passionate cry against apathy and its insidious power... A call to action to give something of ourselves to those who suffer most"

Join Budd while he shares his stories, insights and observations in his personal War for Hearts and Minds, here and there.
