Meet Loki: The Charming Shepherd with a Floppy Ear

By JD & Nicole F.

If you've ever had the pleasure of meeting Loki (formerly Cyrus), our adorable German Shepherd adopted from German Shepherd Rescue of Northern California, you'd quickly understand why he's the heart-stealer of our household. With one delightfully floppy ear and a personality as sweet as honey, Loki is an absolute joy to have around.

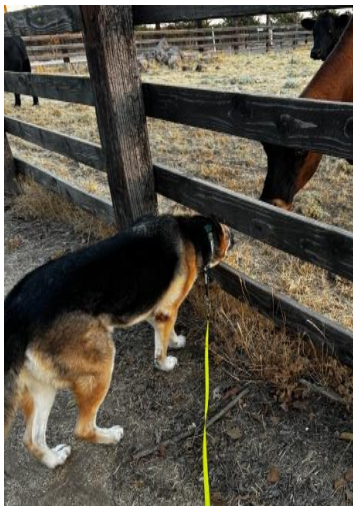

A Curious Explorer

Loki's curiosity knows no bounds. He's the kind of dog who approaches life with a sense of wonder, constantly seeking out new adventures. Whether he's working through puzzles or figuring out how to snag a treat that's just out of reach, his intelligence shines through. It's always a delight to watch him problem-solve with determination and a wagging tail.

Friend to All

One of Loki's favorite pastimes is taking long, leisurely walks in the orchard. It's during these strolls that his social nature truly comes alive. Loki has a knack for making friends with everyone he meets, including the cows on the ranch. Watching him trot up to these gentle giants with his characteristic enthusiasm is enough to warm anyone's heart.

Adventures in town

Loki has a curious knack for knowing when we are getting ready to go into town for a pup cup and is a favorite of the baristas where he gets his weekly treat. He also loves the patio life at his favorite restaurant in Stockton, Market Tavern, where he can lay in the shade and eat chicken made just for him. Actually, any place is Loki’s favorite place if he gets chicken.

Summer Lovin' in the Shade

This summer has been a scorcher, but Loki has found his own oasis. His favorite hangout is on a cozy cot under the water misters, strategically placed in the shade. From this vantage point, Loki surveys his kingdom, taking in everything the light touches with a regal air. It's his little piece of paradise, and he couldn't be happier.

An Enthusiastic Traveler

Loki splits his time between the country house in Acampo and our High Desert home in Nevada. He loves to travel in the car with us and will hop right in when he thinks we are going somewhere. He knows exactly what rest stop is his potty stop and usually snoozes most of the trip.

A Dog Like No Other

Loki is more than just a pet; he's a beloved family member who brings joy and laughter into our lives every day. His floppy ear might be his signature feature, but it's his kind heart and sharp mind that truly make him stand out. Whether he's solving a puzzle, befriending a cow, or lounging in the shade, Loki is living his best life—and we feel incredibly lucky to be part of his world.
