

We have chosen the following texts for our summer focus, with the idea that you may select which one (or two) to read. There are also books suitable for youth and children. Each book will have a "leader" who occasionally posts writing/reflection prompts online, but there is no required expectation for participation in these online discussions. Because we know many folks travel in the summer, we will not meet around these texts or discuss them on any fixed date. In the fall, we will meet to discuss takeaways from our reading and explain the next steps in our antiracist journey.

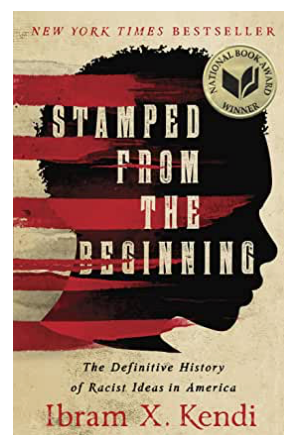

Adult text choices:

Stamped from the Beginning: The Definitive History of Racist Ideas in the United States by Ibram X. Kendi (Leader: Tara Affolter)

The Fire This Time by James Baldwin (Leader: Will Nash)

The Fire Next Time: A New Generation Speaks About Race, edited by Jesmyn Ward (Read The Fire This Time first. Leader: Tara Affolter)

Me and White Supremacy, by Layla Saad (Leader: Rev. Elizabeth Gleich)

For youth and parents:

Stamped: Racism, Antiracism, and You: A Remix of the National Book Award-winning Stamped from the Beginning, by Jason Reynolds and Ibram X. Kendi
