

The Haley Scholars Reading Project

January 26, 2022

Friday Black – Haley Reading Group 1

Haley Scholars, Happy New Year!

First, thanks so much for your contributions to the reading groups last fall. Here we go again.

We'll read stories from Nana Kwame Adjei-Brenyah's short story collection Friday Black. I think you'll find these works intriguing and thought provoking.

As we did last semester, we'll send you a link for the entries on the weeks when the prompt is available.

Here are the reading assignments:

Respondents	Blog Post Date	Reading Assignment	Pages
Group 1	February 9	The Finkelstein 5	1 – 26
Group 1	February 23	The Era	29 – 51
Group 1	March 16	Zimmer Land	85 – 103
Group 1	March 30	Friday Black	104 – 114
Group 1	April 13	In Retail	159 – 164
Group 1	April 27	Reflections

Remember: We will send an email to you on the given day when the blog prompt entry has been posted. You will have the few days to respond. The comments section for the blog is moderated, so it sometimes takes a while for your post to appear; please....no seriously, please be patient.

In order to ensure that readers are encouraged to read your posts, we ask that you keep individual posts relatively short. You can submit as many responses to a given post as you like. However, we would suggest that you limit your individual responses to no more than two paragraphs, and each of those paragraphs should contain no more than three sentences. Taking this approach will make your individual comments more readable.

Sincerely,
Howard Rambsy II
Distinguished Research Professor, Department of English