CREDIT CARD FRAUD 101

In today's information age, your credit card information is at risk for theft. Fortunately, you can try to avoid credit card fraud by keeping your credit card information extra safe. Always be on guard for scammers who may try to trick you into giving up your credit card details.

1. Keep your credit cards safe.

One of the simplest ways to avoid credit card fraud is by keeping your credit cards safe from thieves. Place your credit cards in a purse or wallet close to your body where it can't easily be snatched away.

Thieves can take pictures of your credit card with a camera or cell phone, so don't leave your credit card exposed any longer than necessary.

2. Shred anything with your credit card number on it.

Don't toss your credit card billing statements directly into the trash - they typically have your full credit card number printed on them. Shred them to keep dumpster divers from getting their hands on your credit card number. The same thing applies to old credit cards that have expired or been canceled.

3. Report lost or stolen credit cards immediately.

The sooner you report a missing credit card the sooner your credit card issuer can cancel your credit card and prevent fraudulent charges. r sharing your password.
