The Power of People Skills

By Trevor Throness

Trevor Throness is a veteran coach who specializes in working with growing businesses. He believes that key to organizational success is the ability to put together a winning team, and in this practical and accessible guide, Throness provides the strategies you need to meet the challenges of recruiting and developing staff that will allow your organization to achieve its true potential.

Using hockey as an analogy, the author likens business organizations to team sports. Both include owners, managers and coaches, players and support staff. But why do some teams enjoy successful seasons, and why, after years of losing, do some teams rise to win the championship? The answer can be found in the "people skill" components that make for a winning team.

From points on how to attract star players to handling those tough HR conversations, this guide will provide the tools you need to prime your business for success.
