

BTS-02: Greenland Spring Musk Ox Hunt for 1

If you are looking for a unique hunting experience, Greenland offers hunters an exceptional hunt for Musk Ox in the Spring. A hunt in the arctic is a memory that you will always cherish, apart from coming home with a trophy relatively few hunters have taken.

It is not a physically difficult hunt and if dressed properly for the weather it is not uncomfortable. Staying in a warm cabin and having hot meals goes a long way in making your hunt very enjoyable. A visit to the polar ice cap and a chance to see the Northern lights will complete your terrific experience in Greenland. In addition, hunters can plan a couple of extra days' sightseeing in Copenhagen which is a very nice city to visit.

From the United States hunters will fly to Copenhagen where you will have to overnight. The next morning you will take a 4-hour commercial flight to Kangerlussuaq, Greenland. On arrival you will be met by the outfitter and transferred by jeep or argo to camp. After lunch you will be briefed on the hunt and can zero your rifle before the hunt starts that same afternoon. During the hunt you will use ATVs or eight wheel Argos for transportation and then a final stalk on foot. The guides are raised within the Greenlandic culture and know everything about the behavior of the animals. The outfitters area has a very good population of musk ox and the success rate is close to 100% on this hunt. The abundance of vegetation and food in general are excellent in this area, allowing the musk ox here to grow to a size approx. 15% larger than other areas in Greenland.

A typical hunting group is made up of 4 hunters normally split up in two groups. Both groups will hunt for musk ox. Once you shoot your Musk ox time permitting you will be able to hunt small game – Ptarmigan, Artic hare etc – or experience a dog sled ride (with guide and a dog team of 10-12 dogs) to the snow cap.
