

Incoming Preventive Medicine Residents, 2025

Gregory Cohan, MD

Gregory Cohan is a graduate of Warren Alpert Medical School of Brown University. He completed an internship in Family Medicine at Maine Medical Center where he participated in the clinical informatics track. He is interested in medical informatics and using his preventive medicine training to improve healthcare delivery models that better align clinical practice with population health goals. In his free time, he enjoys hiking, running, playing his ukulele and traveling.

Natalie Rivera Rodriguez, MD

Natalie Rivera Rodriguez is a graduate of Ponce Health Sciences University School of Medicine. She will complete a transitional year at UCF/HCA North Florida Hospital in Gainesville, Florida before joining UMass Chan Preventive Medicine. She is interested in lifestyle medicine and specifically culinary medicine where she hopes to promote holistic healthcare and empower individuals to embrace a healthier life. In her free time, she enjoys traveling and baking.