

Amy Madrill: Helping All Students, No Matter the Starting Point

Amy Madrill, special education teacher at Oak Park, is committed to helping all students make progress, no matter what the starting point. Amy shares that instead of an “I can’t attitude,” she works with students to help them see what they can do. She notes, “Personally and professionally, I am always working to solve problems, look for solutions and try new things to help my students and my coworkers. A positive attitude makes a world of difference!!! This is my light in a world of darkness!”

Amy’s co-teacher, Karlee Clemens, comments, “Amy is an incredible teacher and colleague and I learn from her every day. Co-teaching with her has been a wonderful experience– she is organized, data-driven and caring. She understands students and can anticipate their needs. She is one of the hardest working teachers I know. There is no end to her interests in committees, helping teachers, and going above and beyond for students. She is a 'light'! Can you tell I love teaching with her!?”

Amy attended Kutztown University for her undergraduate degree and attained her masters from Cabrini University. She also has a certificate in coaching and mentoring from Penn State University. Amy has been with the North Penn School District for 16 years and spent the last 14 at Oak Park Elementary. She loves spending time with her husband, Kevin, and family. Amy’s two sons, Todd and David Walter, are both graduates of North Penn. She shares that, “life is never dull,” as her sons, daughter-in-law, Hope, and two grandchildren, Jayce (4) and Skylar (2) all live with her! Amy and her husband love to get away to the beach or the Finger Lakes.
