

Learning Life Skills

Leslie Fulp and Nancy Hoffman, Family and Consumer Sciences teachers at Pennfield Middle School, support students with autism, physical and intellectual disabilities in their inclusive classrooms.

Mrs. Fulp and Mrs. Hoffman are both very excited to implement the adaptive foods and sewing tools that they received through a grant from Pennfield Home and School Association. This will better assist the students with disabilities to be successful in the classroom and learn much needed life skills. Through inclusive practices, including modified assignments, Boardmaker software, and the use of Chromebook to read aloud text, the students engage in meaningful instruction while interacting with their peers and having fun.

A student uses adaptive scissors to make salsa in Pennfield FCS class.