

Kindergarten is like a box of chocolates...

Kindergarten is like a box of chocolates - you never know what you're gonna get! Knapp general education teacher Hilary Veverka, Special Education Teacher Mary Lockard, and Inclusion Facilitator Rachael Burg, were caught being inclusive when they discovered a Kindergarten student with autism who had way more potential than the records that preceded him. This student began by attending homeroom, sitting at the table with his peers, and joining morning meetings. Yet, his teachers knew he was capable of more! Now, a student who was recommended for a self-contained setting coming out of pre-school is fully included in Kindergarten.
