Metastatic Breast Cancer Access to Care Act H.R. 3183/S. 1312

This bill would waive the waiting periods for Medicare (24 months) and Social Security Disability benefits (5 months) for eligible individuals living with metastatic breast cancer.

- Under current law, individuals diagnosed with metastatic breast cancer automatically qualify for disability benefits (SSDI) from the Social Security Administration (SSA) as long as they apply and meet the SSA's technical qualification rules. Once approved, there is a waiting period that can last up to 5 months.
- Following approval of SSDI, individuals with metastatic breast cancer are eligible for Medicare coverage based on their disability, regardless of age. But, there is then another waiting period for Medicare coverage to kick in and that can be up to 24 months.

Metastatic Breast Cancer Access to Care Act H.R. 3183/S. 1312

Why is this bill needed?

- Metastatic breast cancer (MBC) is cancer that has spread from the breast to the bones, lungs, or other parts of the body. 90% of breast cancer deaths are as a result of metastatic disease.
- While there are treatments that may extend the lives of individuals with MBC, there is no cure. The average life expectancy for patients diagnosed with metastatic breast cancer is 3 years (36 months).
- Patients living with MBC often cannot work and therefore risk losing their health care coverage.
- Under current law, individuals with MBC may never receive the SSDI and Medicare benefits for which they are eligible. Waiving the waiting periods would allow patients to get access to the health care they need sooner and help lessen the stress and financial burden they are facing.
- Remember: these are benefits that patients have already qualified for! They are just forced to wait to receive them.

“As someone living with metastatic breast cancer, I know that this is a marathon, not a sprint. And access to treatment is so important. Why should I have to wait up to 2 years for the benefits I already qualify for?”

Metastatic Breast Cancer Access to Care Act H.R. 3183/S. 1312

Why should there be an exception for metastatic breast cancer patients?

- The average life expectancy for patients diagnosed with metastatic breast cancer is 3 years (36 months). Every month counts.
- Federal precedent: SSDI and Medicare have special considerations for those with end stage renal disease and Amyotrophic Lateral Sclerosis (ALS) that waives the 24-month waiting period for Medicare coverage. In 2020, Congress waived the 5-month waiting period for SSDI for individuals with ALS.

Weren't these waiting periods put into place for a reason?

- In general, it's likely that some with people with a disability who apply for SSDI benefits coverage will recover enough to work again and therefore would not ultimately need these benefits. So, instituting a waiting period vs. automatic approval saves the government money. But, people with MBC will not recover.

What would this cost?

- While we do not have an official cost estimate or CBO score (from the Congressional Budget Office), we do know that relative to the total federal budget, the cost would be very small.
