Scholar Spotlight

Jonathan McCoy Martin Luther King Chapter

As Jonathan McCoy prepares to begin his first year of college at Eastern University this September, he reflects on his journey and the path ahead. With a passion for Architectural Engineering, Jonathan is eager to turn his academic interests into a future career. His favorite subjects in school, Reading, Writing and Spanish, have shaped his learning experience, but his aspirations go far beyond the classroom.

While Jonathan isn't involved in sports and hasn't joined any clubs yet, he is keeping an open mind about finding something he enjoys at Eastern University. He is particularly excited about the possibility of joining a club that aligns with his intellectual pursuits and has expressed a desire to see an intellectual game club come to life at YMWIC in the near future. This vision speaks to his creative and problem-solving nature, qualities that will serve him well in his chosen career field.

Jonathan's favorite part of YMWIC has always been the College Tours. These experiences gave him a glimpse into his future, fueling his ambition and readiness for higher education. However, as the school year approaches, he admits he feels more nervous than excited. It's a big transition, and Jonathan is aware of the challenges that may lie ahead; but he remains determined to navigate them with resilience.

When asked whom he admires most, Jonathan quickly names his mother as his greatest inspiration. Her strength and support have been a guiding force throughout his life, and he looks to her example as he embarks on this new chapter. If he could ask his 18-year-old self one thing, it would be: "How did you get over all the challenges?" This thoughtful question reflects his introspective nature and his understanding that success requires perseverance.

As Jonathan heads off to Eastern University, we are excited to see all that he will accomplish. We wish him the best in his pursuit of Architectural Engineering and look forward to seeing him thrive in the YMWIC family and beyond.
