Scholar Spotlight

Braheem Douglas Norristown Eisenhower Chapter

Braheem Douglas is a 7th grade student at Eisenhower Science and Technology Leadership Academy and is new to YMWIC this Program Year. He has enjoyed his first year, because it has helped him to learn much more about science. He was very excited about creating his Science Project and participating in the YMWIC Science Expo, especially learning how to give a formal presentation, a skill he will surely use in the future. His advice to his fellow YMWIC Scholars, “Just keep working hard and good things are going to come to you.” He adds, “YMWIC is a great Program, because it's a good learning experience that can help you both now and in the future.”

In the future, Braheem would like to become a banker or a football player. He is considering Illinois State University and Penn State University. He has earned many karate awards and also plays football and basketball. Whenever he gets the opportunity, he enjoys playing sports outside.

Keep working and playing hard, Braheem. You will be successful and have fun achieving it!
